

SIDE D

MARK.

You are boring.
Boring is good.

It says that what you're doing
isn't about you,
but about the "work"—everything that needs to get done
to make people's lives just a little bit better.

And that's the thing you have that Bill never had,
and the thing that Bill did have, he doesn't have that anymore.

He lost his touch.

People aren't interested in Bill like they used be.

They're tired of him.

And putting him with you will make them tired of you—
tired of you before they've even gotten any of you, because that's the thing—they haven't—they haven't actually gotten you yet.

You are new, in a way.

And and and we're just waiting for the clouds to clear and for people to see you exactly the way you are,
and they will,
they will.

You're Hillary.

Not Hillary Clinton.

Just

Hillary.

That's your story.

HILLARY. (Sober.)

...right.

MARK.

...

HILLARY.
