~~(Mark ...)~~

~~... Mark, not now~~

MARK.
we need to talk

HILLARY.
later

MARK.
Bill would you mind stepping out for a moment so Hillary and I can have a—

BILL.
I would mind, Mark—

HILLARY.
what is it, Mark

MARK.
so Bill—
it turns out—
made one or two appearances on your behalf.

HILLARY.
...

BILL.
...

MARK.
Did you know about this—?

HILLARY.
of course I didn't—did you—?

MARK.

no

HILLARY.

how did you not know—?

MARK.

I—

BILL.

didn't need to know—

you two needed to stay focused on the things you were focused on

HILLARY.

what exactly happened.

MARK.

Bill went out to—

HILLARY.

No, I don't want to hear it from you,

(To Bill.) I want to hear it from you.

Bill.

Speak.

BILL.

I went to your staff, I asked them if there were maybe one or two places I could help out, and they seemed really excited about the idea, really thought it could be a lot of help.

HILLARY.

What did you say when you showed up to these places?

BILL.

What do you think I said? I said people should vote for you,

I said you were the most qualified candidate,
I said you had the most experience, that—

HILLARY. (To Mark.)
Is that right?

MARK.
Not exactly.

HILLARY.
What exactly did you say?

BILL.
I don't remember every single word—

HILLARY.
Mark?

MARK.
He attacked the press,
he claimed they were biased,
he claimed that they were going out of their way
to make you look bad,
and out of their way to make the other guy
look better—called them liars—and he spoke for a while about your opponent.

HILLARY.
What did he say about my opponent.

MARK.
He called Barack illegitimate.

HILLARY.
Illegitimate.

MARK.
Uh-huh.

HILLARY.
What's that code for Bill?

BILL.
It's code for nothing—it's code for—

HILLARY.
what do you think people think when they hear you say that, when you say “he's illegitimate”

BILL.
it just means he's not legitimate—he's not a legitimate candidate.
He doesn't have the experience you have.

HILLARY.
I think people hear something else
when they hear you say that, and I think you know that,
which is why you said it.

BILL.
People will think what they think—I can't be responsible for every—

HILLARY.
oh for fuck's sake

BILL.
do I have to make clear everything I'm not saying

HILLARY.
in some cases—yes.
You do.

BILL.
